Golden Week is the term for the week that encompasses four of Japan's 15 national holidays. It begins with Showa Day, then continues with Constitution Day, Greenery Day and Children's Day. These holidays celebrate former Emperor Hirohito's birthday (April 29), his love of plants (May 4) and the induction of the Japanese Constitution (May 3, 1947). Children's Day (May 5), however, is far more ancient.
